Editorial

It felt like a good time to write this short editorial, after my service as Editor-in-Chief of the ACM Transactions on Algorithms (TALG) for about 4.5 years.

The journal continues to attract high-quality articles from a range of algorithmic theory and applications, as evinced by the present issue. However, we will continue to try to expand to new sub-areas of algorithms—in a measured manner—as algorithms and computer science become ubiquitous.

As always, I thank our hard-working staff, AEs, and referees for their hard work in continuing to maintain the standards of our journal.
